han was generally expected, but, as practice makes perfect, its machinery may soon work more smoothly. To show the distrust with which it is regarded by those not in the secret of its organization, we may mention that its check for fifty thousand dollars, drawn upon the Bank of New York, was declined as a deposit by a customer at one of the largest banks, simply because nothing whatever was known by the bank efficers about this association or the parties connected with it. An official statement of its affairs should therefore be published by the directors, so that the public may know more of this physterious Clearing House, which, if well conducted, may prove a real convenience and obviate the risk attending the delivery of gold in every transaction by measuragers, for by the new system the balance of the lay's transaction only has to be sent to the Clearing House by each of its members, the laster making all the archanges according to the lists handed in by them.

we need not name them; the people in every Southern State know them, and have long since marked them as unworthy of the high hours which they formerly enjoyed, and to which they again aspire, but to which, by the free consent of the governed, they can never hereafter attain. The political doom which "the sober second thought" of the masses has pronounced against these men is richly merited, and will commond itself to the future bistorian as the righteous verdict of an outraged, insulted and betrayed people.

The memorial chapet to be erected at Yale College will cost $150,000. Memorial chapets, it seems, are not to be confined to Northern-colleges, for the ainmul of the Virginia Military institute have resolved to erect an emerial chapet, to contain a statue of "Stonewall" Jackson and busts of other cloridorate generals who graduated at the school, while tablets on the walls will contain the names of graduates who achieved less distinction. The influence of such a movement will hardly tend to foster national patriotism.
